

Curriculum Vitae:

Nicola Nesi has been working as a University Assistant (prae-doc) at the Department of International Law and International Relations at the University of Vienna since January 2022.

In 2015, he completed his first degree at the Department of Political Economy at King's College London. During this time, he also undertook an ERASMUS semester abroad at Sciences Po, Paris, where he studied several specialist topics in international law and international relations. Nicola subsequently read law at Cambridge before spending two years in London gathering experience in several leading law firms, an award-winning legal charity, as a self-employed tutor, and as a Research Assistant at the University of Bedfordshire. Thanks to funding provided by the University of Leiden following his completion of the Advanced LLM in International Dispute Settlement and Arbitration, in the 2020/21 academic year, Nicola served as the Judicial Fellow to Judge Nawaf Salam at the International Court of Justice. Throughout the course of his studies in Leiden, he was one of the Assistant Editors of the Leiden Journal of International Law. Nicola was also a Judge in the 2021 Telders International Law Moot Court competition.

His research interests include international investment law and corporate social responsibility, territorial disputes, and international dispute settlement more broadly.

Research Focus:

International investment law and corporate social responsibility
Territorial disputes
International dispute settlement